Access and Correction of your Information

A donor has the right to make a request of the organisation to access their personal information which is being held by the organisation. This request is to be made in writing and the information will be provided at no charge to the donor.

A donor has the right to make a request to make amendments to the donor's records held by the organisation if these records are in the donor's opinion incomplete, incorrect, out-of-date or misleading.

Opting out or modifying personal information

Each time we send a direct marketing communication we will provide a simple way to 'opt out' or unsubscribe. Donors of the organisation may request to be removed from the database or for communication to cease by notifying the organisation in writing, email, phone, facsimile or by marking the appropriate box on the organisation's marketing or fundraising material.

Occasionally FBNA will share donor details with like-minded organisations both inside and outside Australia. Those organisations allow us to do the same and this way we can reach more people with vital information. An opt-out option is always provided for people who do not want the organisation to share their details. Such details will be recorded by the organisation in a timely manner as the notification is received, provided this does not affect any legal requirements.
